Dear Mr Denny

After further investigation, we can advise there is a possibility that owing to the uniqueness of the vehicle it could have been used for the Imola Individual Brochure, but we don't hold records to confirm this ether way.

This car was originally ordered by BMW UK to see if the interior and exterior colours suited the model – and as they did, the Individual Edition went ahead in the UK. A total of 50 cars were produced.

This car was then used as a BMW employee company car, and as it was produced before this limited edition went on sale, it is not officially an Individual Edition car.

The Individual Edition range would show as option 075 on the vehicles' specification sheet, and also featured the following items as standard equipment:
